A CHANGE FOR PITTSBURG

Conjectures That the Home Team Will Join the Eastern Lot.

A TALK WITH PRESIDENT NIMICK.

St. Louis Team Defeated, and They Throw Up the Sponge,

GENERAL SPORTING NEWS OF THE DAY

Well authenticated rumors are current to the effect that Cincinnati is likely to take the place of Washington in the National Baseball League, and that Pittsburg will be transferred to the Eastern circuit. President Nimick favors the idea of sending the local players South to practice. St. Louis gives up the pennant struggle. John L. Sullivan offers to fight any man in the world. The Pittsburg team defeated the Braddock Blues by 17 to 0.

It was quietly rumored in the city yesterday that an effort was being made to have Cincinnati take the place of Washington in the National Baseball League and to hav Pittsburg transferred to the Eastern circuit. Nothing definite could be learned from the officials of the local club, and THE DIS-PATCH'S Washington correspondent was asked to make inquiries about it: The following special from Washington shows that such a change is being talked of and with some probability of being made. The spe-

Cincinnati will in all probability be admitted to membership in the League at the November meeting in the event of Washington's withdrawal. This information comes from an unquestionable source, and the deal appears to have been contemplated from the moment Walter Hewitt declared his inten tion to retire from baseball. Brooklyn would be delighted to join the League ranks, but something must be done to strengthen the Western circuit, as Chicago is now the only drawing city in that section. The proposition which the magnates are now considering is to

to the Eastern circuit. Brooklyn is one of the best baseball cities in America and the League fully appreciates that fact. Under other circumstances the City of Churches would be welcomed to the League told with open arms. The Eastern clubs all prefer Brooklyn to any other city that has been mentioned, but the Western contingent insists that Cincinnati is a more desirable city from their standpoint. Cincinnati is just as anxious to play under the League banner as the League magnates are to take the Park City into their family. With Cincinnati, Chicago, Cleveland and Indianapo-his in the West and Philadelphia, New York, Boston and Pittsburg in the East, the two cir-cuits will be about as equally balanced as

IT DEPENDS ON HEWITT.

Of course this deal will only be consummated providing Mr. Hewitt persists in disposing of his franchise. The President still has hopes of retaining the Washington club in the League He says Mr. Hewitt is feeling very blue, because he has just closed a very unprofitable cause he has just closed a very unprofitable season, in consequence of limp attendance at home and abroad during the last two months. He was obliged to pay out about $4,600 per month for salaries, and in a majority of the games played in August and September he barely took in an amount equal to the guarantee. He naturally feels unlike exploring the baseball field any further just now, but in a few weeks he may. His League colleagues are desirous that he should linger with them, and they are disposed to do all that is reasonable to induce him to change his mind.

WILL GRANT SOME PRIVILEGES.

But should be remain firm in his determin ation to quit he will be given the same privileges in trying to get out somewhere near even which were accorded to the Detroit club one year ago. Should the Cincinnatis retire from year ago. Should the Challenges fettle from the American Association during the month of November they can take with them into the League all of the members of their present team, if they so desire. That privilege is granted them in section six of the national agreement, which states:

"That nothing herein contained shall prohibit a club, member of either association party hereto, from resigning its membership in such association, during the month of November in any year, and being admitted to membership in the other association, with all rights and privileges conferred by this agreement."

WILL GO DOWN SOUTH.

President Nimick Favors the Idea of Sending the Pinyers to Florida-He Says Hanton Hos Agreed to Remain With the Clab.

President Nimick, of the local ball club, was in somewhat of a confidential mood yesterday afternoon. He talked frankly about the affairs of the club, with special reference to the future. He said, among other things: "We'll certainly have a club here next sesson, and Ed Hanlon has agreed to manage it. I have had a talk with him on the matter, and he states that he is quite satisfied to hold the position. I am satisfied with Hanlon, and think everybody interested in the club will be the same. He has done well, indeed, and therefore we are agreed to keep him in charge. I think, with Hanlor manager and captain, another good catcher and one or two changes that we intend to make, we will have something like a very strong ment about getting the men into condition bement about getting the men into condition before the championship season opens. He said:

"I have had an exchange of opinion with Manager Hanion on this question, and I may say that something will be done early next year.
Mr. Hanion suggests that the players be requested to report in Florida, or some Southern place, and have a week's hard practice; when the week is ended the team to go on a tour and play toward home. The idea is an excellent one, and I think the club can afford to stand a big financial loss on such a trip. The men will return home, I expect, all in good playing trim, and that will mean more victories than defeats, and that will mean more victories than defeats, just as it was in the case of the Cleveland team. what was in the case of the Cleveland team. What we spend in a trip, such as proposed, will be returned us 20 times over. Certainly the dea is a good one."

Mr. Nimick went on to say that he is not sure whether or not Dunlap will remain with the team. "Of course Dunlap, in a very gentlemanly way, told me to try and secure a man to fill his place as he intended to retire at the end fill his place, as he intended to retire at the end of the season, but I hear that he is inclined to play another season. I hope he will, because

Mr. Nimick, at the request of a Philadelphia friend, has resolved to try a young Eastern catcher named Graulick. He is considered a most promising young catcher and an excel-lent thrower. "All we can do," remarked Mr. Nimick, "is to make arrangements with him after the 20th to give him a try next season and see what he can do."

see what he can do."

Doubtless patrons of the local club will be giad to know that Ed Hanlon is content to remain as manager of the club. He is a practical, able and intelligent ball player, and one who certainly knows his business. The fact that the club is so desirous for him to remain proves that his work has been highly appreciated. The other idea viz., that of sending the players South early in the work is also were south. ciated. The other idea, viz., that of sending the players South early in the year, is also one of the best. The players are all delighted with it, and, undoubtedly, the patrons of the club will heartly indorse the pian. President Nimick, with strong reasons, claims that to a very great extent a manager is responsible for the condition of the man who are playing. "If a player is not in condition when he reports the manager must strike his name off the pay roll. If we put the players into practice down South, as praposed, then it is the manager duty to see that every member of the team gets into proper condition."

THREW UP THE SPONGE.

The Browns' Pennant Aspirations Com pletely Settled at Cincinnati. CINCINNATI October 15.-St. Louis' chance knocked into a cocked hat this afternoon by the Cincinnatis winning the first game that was played. The Browns had a bad case of rattle all through the game, and they were also unable to bat or run the bases with any success. Stivetts was batted very hard by the Reds, while St. Louis could do but very little with Duryea's delivery.

Both teams played indifferently in the second game and the Browns won by bunching five of their six hits in the second and fifth inning. The St. Louis will not go to Philadelphia to play the postponed games with the Athletics. To-night President Von der Ahe and his men will return to St. Louis. Score:

WANTS ANOTHER VICTIM. John L. Sullivan Eager to Pulverize Smith or Anybody Else-The Big Fellow Offers to Pay All Expenses for a Fight. NEW YORK, October 15 .- John L. Sullivan wants to fight again, and as soon as possible Hear the great man's challenge in his own in-imitably vigorous and boiled down language: "I want te fight. I've got the champiouship, but any man in the world is welcome to try to get it if he can. I want to fight, and I'll accom modate any man on this earth and for any sum of money, for no fighter, of course," (this re-flectively) "can get backing to appreach mine." This eloquent burst of which rugged sim-plicity is the very foundation, will find official expression soon in a New York paper in which expression soon in a New York paper in which his sentiments will be found set forth in such precise and dignified terms, as best become the formal announcements of diplomacy and prize nghting. In this challenge to the wide, wide world, Sullivan will express a peculiar longing to have Jem Smith or Charles Mitchell accept his invitation to come and be upper cut, cross countered, swinging right-handered and otherwise attended to, but all will be assured of a welcome if they have backing.

Sullivan considers that justice, that blind and prejudical enemy of the prize ring, has made of bare knuckle fighting an occupation too precarious to admit of the genuine comfort that a man should get out of his life work, and so he says that gloves and the rules of the Marquis of Queensberry must be submitted to. He promises to leave no feature of his opponent unturned in the effort to convince him that Sullivan's hands, even with gloves, can do all that is required. If Jem Smith will only come over here Sullivan will gladly pay his expenses and pay for his food and housing while waiting for the sacrifice to come off.

He will also pay the thick Englishman's way out to San Francisco, for he believes that it is there, sheltered by the roof and the pull of the California Athletic Club that the deed should be done. He would not object to an arrangement whereby the Englishman should be assured of a certain sum of money to take home in lieu of any symmetry that he might leave behind him in the land of the free and the home of the big fellow.

A REAL NOVELTY.

E. C. McClelland to Run Against a Pacer for $200 a Side. An exceedingly novel and what promises for be a very interesting match was made yester-day afternoon. E. C. McClelland was matched to run a mile and a half at Exposition Park on Saturday next against a horse that has to pace two miles and three-quarters. The horse is Donald R. The contest is for $200 a side, Moore Floyd put up the cash for the pacer and McClelland's backer posted for the pedestrian. Certainly a race of the kind named is new here and it cannot fail to be interesting in many respects. McClelland is looked upon as a remarkable stayer and tolerably speedy and has never been beaten in a match race. However, what he will do against the borse remains to be seen. Donald R is a local horse and not very slow. It is likely that Moore Floyd will drive him. The talent think that the handicap is a fair one and that the contest will be extremely close if the track is good. The race will take place between the hours of 4 and 5 o'clock. Donald R. But no matter how the fight may go. I am proud of the aid I have received, and I can hardly believe that an old and respected custom in the Republican history will be overturned and set at naught simply because the Seador of a State chooses to come into conflict with the manifest, almost hereditary, rights of a Congressman."

LOST CONTROL OF THE CARS.

Engineer Goebel was in charge of the lever controlling the cars. It was just 12:15 o'clock to-day noon when car No. 29 reached the top. As the car neared the top of the incline the engineer pulled the lever as usual to slow the motion, but to his horror, although the lever was pushed clear back, the car came on with undiminished velocity. Goebel made the most desperate efforts to stop the engine but to no avail. The car came on and struck with terrific force against the abutment of the hilltop landing. Underneath the feet of the engineer the great wheels of the engine still continued to revolve, winding up the massive cable. backing: B. F. Jones.

A SHEER DROP OF 800 FEET. The descent was almost a sheer drop of nearly 800 feet. Midway the plane took a still steeper drop. Like lightning the ear shot down this track and striking the gate at the bottom, which divided the depot from Main street, the upper part of the car went through and swept across the street.

It crashed into Millencamp's grocery store, carrying with it the entire brick front of the building, and wrecking its contents.

The two men, Miller and Hentle, were standing in the street, and were struck by flying fragments. The bottom of the car remained at the toot of the incline track, half imbedded in the foundation walls of the depot waiting room.

The car could go up no further, nor was there any way to stop the engines. Goebel heard a grinding of breaking timbers. There was a creaking and straining beneath the truck, and of a sudden the cable was pulled out from its powerful fastenings in the bottom of the truck, and the car shot downward with its load of precious human

DEATH WAS INSTANTANEOUS Mixed in the debris in almost inextricable confusion were the eight dead and dying victims of the wreck. Death to most of them must have been instantaneous and painless. Mrs. Ives, the wife of a prominent business man, was 60 years old. Her neck was broken.

Mr. McFadden was a contractor. He was literally crushed to a pulp.

Mrs. Errett's neck was also broken. She was the wife of a well-known publisher. Judge Dickson, who was formerly a well-known occupant of the bench, was also terribly crushed and killed instantly. Michael Kneiss was killed instantly, his head being crushed between the timbers of the truck and the wall.

RECOVERING THE VICTIMS. The news of the horror spread like wild fire and in less than half an hour a dense crowd surrounded the scene. Every patrol wagon and ambulance in the city was out and the victims were speedily carried to the hospital and the morgue. The coroner was one of the first on the scene and at once swore in a committee to investigate the causes and fix the blame.

The cause of the accident was the failure of the cut offs in the engine to work, thus allowing the steam to operate the piston and drive the machinery. While the accident was unforeseen, a great deal of censure is being heaped upon the company for their failure to provide safety brakes.

The inclined plane is owned by the Mt.
Auburn Inclined Plane Company, of which
H. H. Little, of Louisville, is President;
H. M. Little Superintendent, and J. M. Doherty Secretary. Mt. Auburn—that por-tion of the city to which the inclined plane cars run—is one of the most fashionable parts of the city.

PLACING THE BLAME. The engineer, so the general rumor goes, does not admit that the fault was his, whereby he virtually throws all the blame on the pilot. It is also a matter of gossip to-night that the car, when it reached the top of the incline, remained there nearly a minute while the gatekeeper was trying to open the iron gates to let the passengers out, but which were so battered that he could not open them. All this time the machinery was pulling the cable from its attachment to the car. Those who believe this inquire why the passengers were not lifted over the railing or why the car was not fastened in its place during this sufficient precious minute. But these are matters of gossip. Experts who have been sent by the Coroner to the seene, say they know just how the accident happened and will tell it at the Coroner's inquest.

A COMPLETE SMASH. No wreck could be more complete than that of the car and the incline running gear. Much of it is broken up into splinters too small for good kindling wood, and, except the roof of the house, there is not a fragment of the wood work of the ruined vehicles left so large that a three-year old child could not carry it with ease. Great crowds surround the scene of the wreck till midnight, and all through the city the calamity is the solitary

ACCOUNTING FOR NAMES. "The fact is that before my candidacy was brought home to my friends many of them had brought home to my friends many of them had signed my opponent's paper. In this way Mr. McKean secured very many signatures which I am certain would have come to me."

"May II ask, Mr. Ford, who your supporters are?" said the reporter.

"My supporters are some of the best business men in Pittsburg. I had, as you will remember, the indorsement of the Pittsburg City Council to start with." Mr. Ford drew a paper from his wallet and

Mr. Ford's next enumerations came into an amusing conflict with the list of those who signed Mr. McKean's petition. Mr. Ford continued: "I had the heads of the city departments and all the city officials."

TROUBLE IN THE NORTHWEST.

a Very Ugly Condition. WINNIPEG, MAN., Octorber 15 .- A. L. Burgess, Deputy Minister of the Interior Department of Canada, has just completed a tour of the Northwest settlements looking into disputed land matters. Speaking of the Saskatchewan halfbreeds, Minister Burgess says they are all right now. As soon as the railway is completed their means of support will be cut off, and their condition may form a serious and difficult problem. The halfbreeds look upon the ad-vent of the railway with so much disfavor,

A MOST HORRIBLE CRIME.

Attempted to Poison an Entire Family for a Paltry Estate.

BERRIEN SPRINGS, MICH., October 15.

-Horace Sebring, the youth who tried to poison all the members of his family, in-poison all the members of his lamily, in-cluding his mother and father, and thus come into possession of a paltry estate, which would have enabled him to get mar-ried, was to-day sentenced to 25 years in the State prison. Sebring confessed to all the horrible details of his crime, how he pur-chased the poison and hid it until a suita-ble opportunity was given him to place it in the tea kettle.

All the family partook of the tea but him self, and when they discovered they were poisoned and implored him to go for aid he boisoned and implored him to go for all he stolidly refused and waited for the drug to do its work. His plans were frustrated, however, by the timely appearance of neighbors, who succored the victims of his

She had a continuous hawking and spitting of the catarrhal secretion that gathered in her toroat, and as the poisonous matter extended to her lungs she coughed hadly. The pressure and pain she felt in her lungs told her only too plainly that the disease was fast progressing. Ulceration set in, causing frequent hemornhages. She became very weak, nervous, and seldom could get a good night's sleep. Hor stomach gave her much distress after eating, and she also suffered terribily from diseases peculiar to women. After consulting the physicians of the Catarrh and Dyspepsia Institute at 33 Penn avenue she began treatment, and of the result she says: "I am very glad to give my testimony.
